$300 More Raised For Hospital

Kiwanis Club Sends Another Cheque For the new Wing

REGULAR LUNCHEON

Lindsay Kiwanis Club is steadily whittling down the amount of $5,000.00 promised for the building fund of the Red Cross Hospital Nurses' new maternity wing.

Another check for $300.00 has been sent to the Board of Governors, the proceeds received by the operating of a blanket game at Bobcaygeon Park.

Announcement of the above was made at the regular weekly luncheon of the Club held Thursday, by President Carlisle and a hearty resolution was framed, thanking the Directors of the Bobcaygeon Fair for the generosity afforded in making the substantial check possible.

A Presentation

Thursday's luncheon was in charge of "Chic" Baker, Captain of the losing side of Kiwanis in the attendance campaign which has just been completed. Capt. "Bill" Mansfield and the winning colleagues were guests of the Club, and partook of chicken and plum pudding.

During the luncheon Capt. Mansfield was presented with a silver cup by the Bakeries, a token of appreciation and a tribute to his popularity and success.

Dr. Trine announced that the Club would be celebrating the winners of the boys and girls home garden contest on Oct. 17th.

"Opportunities in Kiwanis"

Members of the Club had the pleasure of listening to address from Kiwanian Joe Johns, of Peterboro, on the subject, "Opportunities in Kiwanis." It was a forcible, eloquent address, of short length but full of enthusiasm and words of wisdom.

The speaker referred to the opportunities afforded by the mingling of Kiwanians and residents of the rural districts, to the opportunities in fostering juvenile sport; the assisting of those less fortunate than others who are good health and circumstances; the opportunity of giving delinquent boys a chance in life; the providing of ideas and tools of relieving suffering humanity; the opportunity of making enduring friendships. Kiwanians have a mission and should endeavor in every opportunity to fulfil that mission. Kiwanians can also help much in the building of Canadian Nationhood and the cementing of empire bonds.

At the conclusion of Kiwanian John's address the expression of appreciation was moved by Kiwanian Moynes.

Charlie Chaplin Lives Sad and Lonely Life

Actor Loves and Despises the World That He Amuses

SAD LITTLE CLOWN

New York, Oct. 4—Charlie Chaplin, the man whom Lenin, the Russian dictator, said he would rather meet than any other man on earth, is the subject of an acute character study by Waldo Frank in Scribner's Magazine, which reads in part as follows:

"Life of Party

Wherever Chaplin goes in Hollywood he is the life of the crowd. He acts. He mimics. He plays. He insists on amusing and on being seen. But always there is the same immediate wavering away from the life about him and from the effect he produces. He does not give himself nor does he really take. Above all, he does not accepting or refuse any advance or emotion. He is non-committal.

"Intellectuals: is the principle that best explains the balance of opposites in feeling. Conduct, thought, which he sets up. He is never alone. He is never alone in the like an atom that must journey alone through the world. It moves in a circle of companions here and there, myriadly attracted, myriadly repelled, seeming to give, seeming to receive—always remaining free and alone. A direct refusal of the world about him would mean a definite relation with it. This is not his game. If the world draws him, he responds—passive. His course has been severed, but he is uncommitted. He resolves every force into a play of motion. Emotionally this means that he frustrates in himself every impulse of utter giving or of utter taking. He remains unpossessed and ultimately unpossessing. But this deep frustration is the key to his profound success. Do not pity him for it. It is the prime creative

ALWAYS "ALONE"

With sure instinct Chaplin has molded his personal life through channels where he would be always alone. He loves the world he lives in, and despises it. He does not want to change it, no man is farther from the reformer of the proper and yet he does have desire so much to shake by his ridiculous and worthless. He does not want another world. He uses this one just as it is in order to insure his aloneness. But, were he really so free, he would meet in one sphere or himself would be unpossessed he would prove his unity with the world. So he courts the world, and dwells in it in order to demonstrate such a possible self-encounter.

"There was a time when Chaplin seemed to me a kind of fallen angel, an angel cursed by God with all human weaknesses save the ability to fulfill them; cursed with the gift of evoking laughter and love and with no power to take laughter and love to himself. But this was a sentimental error. The inordinate tenderness of the man, his gentility and grace are checked by his native rejection of the

Held Men Hostage and Attempted to Bargain For Automobile to Make a Getaway

Canon City, Colo., Oct. 4—(Can. Press)—A definite end of the prolonged and chaotic prison riot at the Colorado State Penitentiary came at dawn today when the besieged convicts, more than 150, walked from cell house No. 3 in orderly fashion with their hands high above their heads.

The end of the riot came after half a day and a night of furious fighting, during which a number of guards, held hostage by the prisoners, were murdered when their demands to Warden F. E. Crawford for safe conduct from prison were refused. During the riot dynamite barrages of machine gun and rifle bullets and tear gas bombs failed to vanquish the prisoners.

In the cell house today guards found the bodies of the ring leaders dead about two hours. It was noted that the rebellion had calmed about two hours before the prisoners surrendered and the cause of the outbreak became definitely upon the receipt of the news that the ringleaders of the rebellion, which took the lives of at least twenty men, had shot themselves early this morning.

One of the remaining guards held hostage and believed to have been put to death by the convicts, on his release from the prison, telephoned Major Davis and "Red" Riley, three of the known instigators of the plot had committed suicide.

Sixty-three men, manning two machine guns and a dozen rifles, poured bullets at the window doors and openings of cell house No. 3, where the guards had night had barricaded themselves.

Delay in the attack as planned by the guards, however, had allowed to explode a 50 pound charge of dynamite placed by Father Patrick

URGES NEED OF PREVENTION

October 6—12 Declared Fire Prevention Week; Our Chief Asks Co-Operation of Citizens

From October 6 to 12, all next week, is "Fire Prevention Week" all over Canada. Fire Chief H. McCullum accordingly asks the citizens to clean up their premises and exercise care to avoid fires, and to extend others to do the same. Posters and bulletins issued by the Dominion Fire Commissioner at Ottawa note the fact that in 1923 Canada's fire loss destroyed 36 million dollars worth of property and that 314 lives were lost in fires.

It isn't likely that Lindsay will have an extensive fire-prevention-week campaign but the citizens will be asked to observe the conditions advised by the government. Chief McCullum also has a questionnaire on a home inspection for school children and with the co-operation of teachers some valuable work can be done here.

Are Married in Eyes of Law But Not According to Laws of Church

Montreal, Oct. 4—No cause of the civil code of the province of Quebec renders null a marriage solemnized by a person other than a Catholic Priest between a member of the Roman Catholic and one of the Protestant faith, it was declared by Mr. Justice Surveyer in the superior court recently in dismissing an action of Joseph Bernard against Marie Jeanne Laure McGrobber. The marriage was conducted by a clergyman of the United Church in Montreal, on Dec. 3, 1928, the husband declared in his statement to the court. At that time he was a practising member of the Protestant faith, while his wife was a Roman Catholic. Some time ago, it appeared, the marriage had been declared null by Ecclesiastic authority in the Catholic church, and he asked that the courts should pronounce the ceremony null.

Claims All Americans Are Troubled By 'Spectatoritis'

Says That Most Men Are Absolutely Unfit For Leisure

ARE MERE ROBOTS

New York, Oct. 4—"The question as to whether or not man can be trusted with leisure has by no means been answered," Dr. Jay B. Nash, Professor of Physical Education at New York University, told the recreation conference of New York City at its opening session at the Hotel Commodore.

"Every civilization at the present time is that the man who more leisure will turn out to be a spectator," Dr. Nash declared. "A waiter of somebody else doing something, merely because that is the easiest thing. Spectatoritis has become almost synonymous with Americanism. We are in the gladiatorial age. We are in the age of panic, panic and many seats for spectators."

MAKING MONEY

Most people are interested more or less in making money but few realize how money will work for them if left alone in a proper investment. It is an old saying that money doubles itself in 20 years but, a generation back of that saying is seldom grasped. A Chicago banker for example has figured out that if one hundred dollars invested in the Bible been invested then, 1900 years ago, at five per cent, semi-annual interest compounded, it would reach the brain-tiring sum of $563,100,000,000,000,000,000,000. Of course the sum is simple but that doesn't mean much but this same banker gives a more practical idea of his meaning by saying that five dollars a month placed in a savings bank, paying three per cent, will net the saver in thirty years the operating sum of $29,113, or if invested at five per cent in bonds will become $48,000 in the same period of time. The lesson back of this simple little bit of calculation is clear to all who read it. It is a lesson of thrift and tells the possibilities of steady systematic saving. It means for instance that if a boy commences at an early age a small sum yearly for a child shortly after it is born to have a nest-egg while still young enough to enter upon a business or professional career. There are other ways in which this principle could be applied, but it is merely pointing out that it is not necessary to save very large sums to acquire a fair competence of money if the saving is done systematically. The big trouble with many people, particularly of late years, is that they regard a saving account as merely a place to accumulate enough money to make another payment on something or other. While of course a great deal of this instalment buying is good buying a great deal of it isn't and it isn't at all the idea of a savings account and no results will be secured from such a method of operating an account.

MORE HOKUM

"There has come to our desk this week the first issue of a new magazine, called The Canadian Republic, published in Montreal by one Gordon Weir. Its sole aim and reason for existence is to try and make Canada a republic. It has in it some several items of which call for Canadians to be Canadian and nothing else, to forget England and to insist on self government, that is a Canadian born governor-general. In other words the magazine and its utterances run perilously close to treason in many spots. It is doubtful, however, if it will have much of a sale or last very long. Mr. Weir is very much wound up in his subject, so much so that he sees pretty much the whole of this first issue himself, because, he said, he couldn't find anyone capable enough to write for him." Daring it certainly is though it is almost equally foolish in places. He states in one article that England does not take Canada seriously; in fact does not take anything seriously for they are "a people of long complacent if not clowns." He also suggests that the reason some 65,000,000 people of English blood live in the United States is because their forefathers or themselves preferred to go there because "that country had the guts to govern itself." In fact Mr. Weir is very dogmatic if not very polite and states his case very forcibly, using much about the niceties of language. But it does seem a pity that he could put his brain and talents to something more useful. There may be a demand for a republic in Canada, but if so it has not manifested itself yet.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

The Farmers' Sun comes forward with a very practical suggestion for this government of this province in the way of letting the people know what is going on. The suggestion is that instead of only a yearly financial statement being issued by the provincial treasurer that a statement be given out monthly showing the financial standing of the province. This is in line with the system used by the Federal Minister of Finance, who once a month makes a financial return giving a very fair notion of just how the government stands. In contrast with this the electors of Ontario are given only one opportunity during the year so know where their money stand. They should be told at intervals how much money the provincial government is receiving in revenue and from what sources, how much it is spending and in what connection and what progress, if any, is being made in the reduction of the provincial debt which, as the Farmers' Sun observes, has now assumed such proportions that it requires constant attention. Statements such as these must be prepared periodically by the Clerk and Treasurer for the benefit of his Cabinet colleagues. Why should not the information which the central has be imparted to the public, who are just as much entitled to a knowledge of the standing of the provincial finances?

REAL TRAINING

Local citizens and particularly those interested in the Boy Scouts are greatly pleased to learn the other day about the success of a local boy who recently entered Trinity College. This young fellow and his brother slipped from the straight and narrow and were persuaded to the society of the local club and sent to the Bowmanville school where they have been taught to shine in sports, to clean their pass, and learn a useful trade. That they are doing it is proof of the value of the training the Boy Scouts and Boys Clubs of the province have taken a keen interest. In that connection the Bowmanville Boys' Club of Times The other day on the school, following a ceremony there when a new gymnasium was dedicated, it illuminating in that it shows that the work of the school is appreciated and valued. The Times said:

"One of the things for which the Ferguson government is to be congratulated from anything but 'of a political flavor, is its interest 'in the boys of Ontario. The Orillia 'and Bowmanville, for boys 'who have become delinquent, is one 'evidence of this, and whether it 'be found in the government that a 'boys' training camp, not for delin-'quents, but for boys who have acted 'as a boy should, is to be 'established on Lake Couchiching. 'near Orillia. So, while the Bow-'manville institution is a place 'for sub-normals, it is quite in 'keeping to suggest that the Orillia 'training camp is to be a training 'school for abnormals.

"This is a worth while work. It 'is commendable that the privi-'leged and sub-normal boy needs 'much attention, but at the other 'end of the scale are boys who 'who require encouragement and 'assistance to make the less of 'their gifts. So that, while the 'Bowmanville school aims to make 'the bad boys into good boys, the 'training camp which is proposed 'will make the good boys into bet-'ter boys, thus carrying worth-while 'benefits to a large class of the 'finest young men of Ontario."

DOCTORS OFTEN AT VARIANCE

"Mercy killings," an old subject, mercifully dies for putting to death by medical men of people who have no hope of recovery, or who are very aged, is again being discussed.

"The great trouble is that many of us know, or have known of people given up by the doctors, who are still alive, or who lived long after their death warrant had been pronounced.

"Doctors themselves declare that they may easily differ in diagnosis.

NIGHT PARKING ON STREETS
(Kingston Whig-Standard)

That is rather a curious matter to which the Kitchener Record draws attention in an editorial, namely that it has been discovered that an average of 40 automobiles, out-of-town automobiles, are parked on this city's business streets almost every night.

The paper points out that the streets are not intended to be permanent parking places, and that those who take such an undue liberty should be told to "stay off." It is pointed out also that those tourists who do not wish to place their cars in a garage for safekeeping during the night have the free use of the market place as a parking space.

It would be interesting to know how many other cities suffer from this sort of thing.

YOUR DRINKING WATER
(Aylmer Express)

While drinking water in cities and towns is frequently analyzed as to purity, the wells in rural sections are too often taken for granted.

In view of the long drought and the exceeding scarcity of water, farmers would do well to know just what kind of water is being used in their homes.

In the last survey of well waters from farm homesteads, the samples submitted showed only some 24.4 per cent. as pure and wholesome. Every farmer may have the water tested free of charge, providing samples are collected and sent in prepaid.

CLEARS CHOKED DRAINS CLEANS, DISINFECTS REMOVES OLD PAINT MAKES GOOD SOAP ETC. Always ask for— GILLETT'S LYE

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

VALUE OF PERSPIRATION

In students we were taught that as perspiration or sweating took liquids and wastes from the skin the skin thus took considerable work off the kidneys.

In the warm weather the skin was so active and so much sweat was produced that the kidneys did not need to throw off much urine, and yet they did excrete it was just the reverse and the kidneys had to do more work.

Thus drugs and other methods were used to induce sweating and so remove "poisons" from the system. Then it was felt that if we were taught the amount of poison removed by the skin even when sweating did not amount to anything, the benefit coming simply from the loss of heat and moisture by the body.

However physiologists now believe that the skin can relieve the kidneys of much of their work, as they find that sweat contains some of the primary substances of the urine, in acute inflammation of the kidneys the sweat glands cannot take the place of the kidneys, but in old or chronic inflammation of the kidneys patients can be kept alive by sweating.

Where there is high blood pressure and inflamed kidneys sweating is not always safe, nor is it certain and wise to use drugs or moist heat to induce sweating. Some patients collapse from this treatment. Dr. Neal is the method that is safe and effective.

Dr. F. M. Allen, describes the construction of a cabinet which is in fest square and 8 feet high, properly ventilated, and hot dry air used at a temperature of 140 to 180 degrees F.

The treatment can be given for half an hour, thirteen hours a day, but the patients stay in the cabinet only half an hour.

As much as four quarts of sweat will be lost. That dry heat chamber has been found useful in rheumatic infections, skin ailments, and none, fibrosis and lung conditions.

While not for the layman, the Turkish bath certainly helps many individuals, this dry heat is more effective and is much safer. It is certainly not so exhausting.

The small electric light cabinet bath is helpful in mild cases.

"Well, suh," replied Rufus, "dat yo' mean dis lil' shirt, or dat yo' last night?"—Successful Farming.

Alain Gerbault, the young Frenchman who sails the Seven Seas alone in a cockleshell, recently put in a wireless set, and then fell into stormy Atlantic a little antedote about him.

Gerbault, on his first wireless equiped voyage, saw one day in mid-ocean the enormous Leviathan. He turned to his wireless.

"Can you radio to receive a message?" he flashed.

"Yes," the Leviathan flashed back.

Then Gerbault in his tiny cockle-shell hesitated. What to say next? Finally, rather at a loss, he flashed:

"Is there anything I can do for you?"

The two boxing managers were discussing a forthcoming fight.

"I expect one of the world round" remarked one, "your man will hit mine, and he will lie down for the count."

"No, no," expostulated the other, "not in the second, but in the eighth or ninth round—we must not cheat the public.

Brantford

Trenton, Oct. 4—The name of W. H. Ireland, Trenton, Party Whip in the Legislature, was the only one to go before the convention of Conservatives of West Hastings here yesterday. The nomination was made by Lieut.-Col. R. J. E. Graham of Belleville, and seconded by Mrs. Grant de Stanwell, W. C. T. U. Kelcheson of Belleville presided. Hon. George S. Dodds Is Candidate Again

Blind River, Oct. 4—At a largely attended and enthusiastic convention here last night, the Conservatives of Algoma Hilling were unanimous in their choice of Dr. J. M. Robb of Blind River as their standard-bearer in the coming provincial election. This is the fifth consecutive occasion upon which Dr. Robb has received the endorsement of the Conservative convention in this riding.

Finch, Oct. 4—Duncan A. McNaughton of Finch, who carried Stormont in the Conservative interest at the last Provincial election, was again as he was then the standard-bearer at a delegated convention held at Finch yesterday afternoon. Lieut.-Col. C. D. Robinson of Cornwall was the only other placed in nomination, and the final ballot was so overwhelmingly in favor of Mr. McNaughton that Colonel Robinson moved that the nomination be made unanimous. Mr. McNaughton may be returned by acclamation, as at their meeting last week the Liberals unofficially decided not to place a candidate in the field.

Ran as Independent

Chatham, Oct. 4—Warden Goldwin Russell, Reeve of Raleigh, has officially announced himself a candidate for election in the approaching political contest in West Kent. He will run as an Independent, with a platform all his own. On the temperance question he believes that the L.C.A. should be strictly enforced and amended, but that the people should be given a referendum on the question when they demand it. He is opposed to Premier Ferguson's Township School Bill, and believes that the Government should pay a larger proportion of the cost of Provincial highways out of the gasoline tax.

Clark Again Chosen

Brockville, Oct. 4—Dr. H. A. Clark, member for Brockville Riding in the Provincial Parliament since 1923, is to be the Conservative candidate again in the forthcoming contest on Oct. 30. This was decided at the party convention yesterday, his nomination being made unanimous by the meeting after it was moved by W. H. Reynolds and seconded by Andrew M. Ferguson, Glen Elliot. No other names were put forward. Mr. Clark and Joseph P. Thompson, Athens, President of the association, was Chairman of the convention and the hall was filled to capacity.

Choice: Woman

Toronto, Oct. 4—The Liberals of St. George's and St. David's ridings held a joint nomination meeting in the Veterans' Hall on Isabella Street last night. The former gave their unanimous endorsation to Mrs. Grant Needham, while the latter riding put five names before the meeting, three nominees withdrawing, and a ballot was taken between Elgin Schoff and J. W. Carrick, the latter winning out on the vote "by a small margin" according to R. J. D. Ross, Toronto Men's Liberal Association, who presided.

Mrs. Needham's speech of acceptance conformed in all respects to the mandate the candidate had laid out: Brief, be bright and be gone." and at the outset she said, "I will do my best to keep the flag of Liberalism floating high."

To Lanark

Carleton Place, Oct. 4—At a well-attended convention of the Conservative Party held here yesterday afternoon, Lieut.-Col. C. D. Robinson of Cornwall was the only other candidate as well as the delegates were pledged to support the choice of the convention.

Fort William, Oct. 4—Frank H. Spence, the sitting member, was nominated by acclamation to contest the seat in the forthcoming Provincial election by Port William Conservatives in their convention yesterday afternoon.

West Hastings Liberals

Belleville, Oct. 4—Liberals of West Hastings met in convention in this city yesterday to nominate a candidate to contest the riding in the forthcoming Provincial election. E. J. Butler, K.C., Acting President of the Liberal Association, was in the chair. Only five names were submitted to the delegates present: Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Belleville; W. A. Fraser, Mayor of Trenton; Charles E. Hanna, ex-M.P.; Colonel Rosser Vandervater, Thrasher of Sidney Township, and E. J. Butler, K.C., prominent barrister of this city. Mr. Fraser, Mr. Butler and Colonel Vandervater declined the nomination with thanks, and the consent of either Dr. Faulkner and William Fraser was not obtained. The meeting adjourned after the nominations were in, but before it became known Colonel Vandervater made a motion to the effect that, if neither of the two men nominated would stand as a candidate, a new convention be called in this city on Oct. 10, to include all those opposed to the Ferguson Government. This was unanimously passed.

Liberal Named in Leeds

Thisle, Oct. 4—The Liberals of the Riding of Leeds held their convention at Delta, yesterday afternoon, and it was a most enthusiastic gathering. A number of men were nominated, but all withdrew with the exception of Dr. J. A. Sinclair of Gananoque, who will again contest the constituency.

FAMOUS IRISH ACTRESS SEEN IN NEW PICTURE

A fare that, to quote herself, is "no Irish as the map of Eire," when Aggie Herring particularly will for the entertaining characterization she portrays in "Smiling Irish Eyes," Colleen Moore's romance of the Old Sod, which opens Monday at the Academy Theatre.

Hollywood producers have frequently used Miss Herring for Irish portrayals. "Pat and Mike," "Pigeon's Bath," McFadden's Flats" and "The Cohens and Kellys" being among the pictures in which she played such characterizations. In "Smiling Irish Eyes," a First National-Vitaphone picture produced by John McCormick, Miss Herring is a member of a talented supporting cast, with James Hall, Claude Gillingwater, Bryan Herman, Betty Francisco, Tom O'Brien and Robert Emmett O'Connor.

TYPICAL FAMILY SCENES CAUSE GALES OF MIRTH

A riot of mirth with an undercurrent of genuine pathos is the Academy Theatre yesterday Its Tiffany-Stahl's newest production "The Man in Hobbles," suggested by a Peter B. Kyne story with John Harron and Lila Lee expelled as the young couple whose happiness is threatened by the intrusion of the bride's good-for-nothing family.

That family is a classic, eliciting laughs every time one of its members appears upon the scene. Lou Lister Litchfield and Suzanne Blake are Pa and Ma, both of whom you would like to drown if they weren't so comic and real. Eddie Hopson is the elder brother, a typical small town youth, and Betty Egan and Bill Anderson are the twins who put the finishing touches on most of the delirium. Then there is gorgeous Vivian Oakland who is women, unconsciously, the means of delivery.

George Archambaud, always clever in his direction, has done some of his best work on "The Man in Hobbles." There isn't a slow or irrelevant minute in the whole picture. It's one of those pictures about people you're all known, even if some of them were in slightly different social strata than "The Man in Hobbles" reveals them.

"THE GIRL FROM RIO" AT WONDERLAND TO-NIGHT

"The Girl From Rio," starring Carmel Myers in the show at the Wonderland Theatre and it is a picture that combines all the elements that make for real entertainment, drama, romance, colorful atmosphere and a cast of screen favorites.

The story is one unusually strong combining a number of tensely dramatic situations, which are worked out logically to a powerful and somewhat amazing climax. The sets are unusually handsome. The cinematography of this carnival scene, photographed entirely in Technicolor, are most effective, bringing out the colorful and tuneful background of Rio's leading cafe.

Carmel Myers in the title role plays her part with spirit and rare charm and brings a deep sense of dramatic value to the part of the Spanish dancer. Walter Pidgeon plays opposite Miss Myers and his performance is noteworthy for its poise and understanding. The remainder of the cast includes such well known players as Richard Tucker, Mildred Harris, and a new discovery, Edward Raquello, who plays the Spanish dancer. He shows rare promise and proves himself a highly accomplished dancer.

"The Girl From Rio" will win the hearts of any audience.

Murdered Guards

Canon City, Oct. 4—Six hundred convicts in the state prison here mutinied at noon yesterday and by 9 o'clock last night, after hours of desperate fighting, 15 lives had been lost, five of the dead are guards, the other six convicts.

Three of the guards were killed during the first half hour of the fighting, all of them died of wounds received early in the battle. The other three guards were slain in cold blood. The entrenched convicts, who held their prisoners, had threatened to shoot them unless they were allowed to escape. When the warden refused to bargain with the mutineers they made good their threat.

One by one the three murdered guards were tossed through the window of cell house No. 3 in which 150 desperate killers had entrenched themselves after their fellow mutineers had laid down their arms. At this time the bodies of six unidentified convicts were already lying in the prison yard.

It was soon after 7 p.m. when the bullet-riddled body of R. J. Elliott, one of the imprisoned guards, was thrown out of cell house No. 3. He was rushed to the hospital but died within an hour.

Fifteen minutes later a second body hurtled from the convicts' stronghold.

Warden Eugene Crawford's reply to the mutineer's demand for automobiles in which to escape returned before and after each body was tossed out was, "Go to hell!"

Shortly after this time defying the convicts the warden received a message from E. J. Hollister, another of the guards as hostages. It read:

"They will kill all of us if you don't act quickly. For God's sake help us!"

Again the warden refused to meet the convicts' terms, informing Guy W. H. Adams of his action and receiving the latter's approval of it.

At 9 o'clock a third guard body was tossed out of cell house No. 3, before the horrified eyes of the 1,000 men surrounding the prison. It was that of Marvin Duncan.

Warden Crawford's attitude is this evidence that the embattled mutineers were in deadly earnest when they issued an ultimatum that every one of the guards they held as hostages would be killed at one minute they won their freedom, was to hasten preparations to dynamite the cell block No. 3.

While the dynamite was being planted 500 national guardsmen grimly drew up in formation in readiness to storm the convicts' stronghold the moment the charge should be exploded.

The desperate break for liberty started as the prisoners were filing into the mess hall for lunch. By 4 p.m. after an afternoon of mining, 400 of these laid down their arms. The remaining 200 retreated to cell house No. 3, after setting the torch to the prison chapel, cell hall and cell house No. 1 and No. 2.

THE RETURN OF FEMININITY

This is certainly the era of the ultra feminine in the world of fashion and any rate. For your muff has arrived to emvamis the trend that is so marked this season. The fashion of the sulphined muff is a scarf and ball muff set of silver nutria, and it makes a very definite appreciation to the Fall costume. Important points of the fur set are the oval ball shape of the muff and the gracefully carefree way in which one end of the scarf is pulled through the slotted opening. The fur is a simple tweed enteemple with three-quarter jacket in a rich wine-red shade. The velvet cap with long side streaks is of the same delectable shade.

Timely Tips

To remove ink stains from furniture (mahogany, rosewood or black walnut) put six drops of sweet spirits of nitre in a spoonful of water and touch stains with a feather wet in the mixture; as soon as stains disappear, rub with a cloth dampened with cold water or sweet oil. Alcohol will also remove ink stains. Carpet sweepers are invaluable for the times in between vacuum cleaning; but the sweeper must be kept clean; all lint removed from the brush and the bristles aligned with a cloth dipped in kerosene occasionally. Then you will get real service from the sweeper.

Man's survival depends upon his participation in religious activities which keep alert duo-organism of body and mind.

It will take infinitely more planning that has yet been displayed by any city in the country, Dr. Nash said, to provide man with the leisure which will make his leisure time an asset rather than a liability. Many men today are gifted with leisure, he declared, because activity is man's normal state and rest is natural only as a recuperative measure for more activity.

"Too much waking and sleeping leisure dulls the mind," he emphasized. "We have produced thousands of robots who are mere creatures of their environment. To keep during new problem must be solved. New activities must be sought upon the participation basis, not the spectator basis. The problem of adult recreation is the problem of supplying these activities."

PACKING A SCHOOL LUNCH

Many are many mothers who must pack a lunch box five mornings a week. These mothers soon discover that their usual plan-in-a-day is a place of the usual three. The planning of the lunchbox menu is as essential as the planning of the home luncheon. This meal must be a satisfactory supplement to the other two meals of the day. It must be nourishing and inviting.

Plan the meal to be carried the day before. The hour saved in the morning when every minute must equate allows little time for "hunting up something" for the lunch box. The packing of the food in the lunch kit is of almost as great importance as the lunch itself. A plenty of waxed paper of different thicknesses, paper napkins, tiny waxed card-board containers, small baking cups and picnic spoons are conveniently available and the task is lightened and neatness is assured.

Put the dessert in first! If the cookie fruit or custard is put in the box the last thing, the box must be unpacked to reach the sandwiches or else the dessert only is eaten and the sandwiches overlooked.

Try to keep the lunches from becoming monotonous. The same foods and same combinations of foods are as uninteresting for the packer as for the child. The personal likes and dislikes of a child should be considered. Little girl's and big girls like things to be dainty. Two small sandwiches are usually preferred to one big thick one, while a boy will resent the feminine touch and prefer a "manly" sandwich. Neatness and order will appeal to the boy quite as much as to the girl.

Children should be taught that a different sort of lunch than is prepared for the high school boy is right.

A thermos bottle of milk or hot soup in cold weather is excellent for all concerned. Sandwiches of lettuce, minced veal and raw carrot, chopped nuts with ripe olives and cream cheese, cucumber and sliced roast beef make good hearty sandwich fillings. Cookies, cakes, individual baked custards, fruit and firm tapioca puddings are suitable for desserts. Carefully wrapped celery or radishes give balance to the meal by supplying bulk and crispness to a diet that is apt to be concentrated and soft.

RECIPES

To make dressing melt the butter in a saucepan. Stir in the flour and dry mustard and cook for a couple minutes without browning. Then draw the saucepan to the side of the fire and gradually stir in the milk. When all is in and the mixture quite smooth, cook until boiling and boil for three minutes. Add the sugar, salt and pepper and allow the sauce to cool a little; then stir in the yolk of an egg. Stir over the fire for a couple of minutes without allowing the mixture to boil. Leave the sauce to become quite cool. Stir in the vinegar very gradually and when it is quite cold fold in the whipped cream and serve in a sauce boat or glass jug with the salad.

four children looking on, he had wept as the prison chaplain pronounced the words legalizing his marriage to Jean Carmichael.

Anna had wept also. So had the children and the chaplain and even the rough fellow-prisoners who were present during the jail ceremony.

But De Silvestro had wept hardest and longest of all. He had wept at his request that the marriage rite was performed. He had suddenly realized, the man who had defied police for 21 years, the Romeo who had many mothers who assisted him in his amours, the man who had never let him see Anna Bendiveng again.

The assizes will try him for five murders. The prosecution will describe a night in August, 1907, when the young shepherd, De Silvestro, crept upon the straw hut of Deside Diasso, who favored another man.

The state's lawyers will declare De Silvestro shot the girl to death and then set fire to the hut, singing and playing a guitar as the flames burned to death her sister, a girl friend and a male relative.

The prosecution will show how the shepherd shot down Guido Diasso, the peaceful suitor, and wounded Guido Dissaro, the hapless peasant girl's brother, who would have gone to the rescue.

They will tell, finally, how De Silvestro fled, only to be captured, with both legs broken, after he escaped from a house roof in escape police, who found him living with Anna Bendiveng and the four children on a small farm near Gallenaro last November.

In all his adventures it was not of record that De Silvestro ever wept—until he did so, copiously, at his wedding.

Messrs. John Webster, John Brown and Peter Morrison, of Woodville, and W. Rich and Charles Rich, of Oakwood, were appointed judges to coach the boys for the inter-county plowing match at Kingston on Friday, October 18th, and will meet on Monday at John Webster's farm.

Mr. Francis Cayley, Lindsay, was appointed as assistant secretary for the Victoria County match. Mr. M. H. Winter is secretary.

The Victoria Association will ask Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, managing director of the International Plowing Match, to send one of Messrs. William Doherty, W. C. Barrie, James McLean and George Little, to judge Victoria County's match.

Messrs. P. Morrison (chairman), F. Cayley, W. Rich, Charles Jennison, S. Leslie, A. McFayden, Alex McFayden, Charles Rich and John Hutton were appointed to take out the ground for the match and otherwise look after the grounds.

The committee appointed to revise the prize list will meet in the agricultural office, Lindsay, to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock.

Entries for the local match will close at 9 a.m. on the day of the match and plowing will start at 9.30 a.m. and continue to 3.30 p.m. If the match is delayed in starting it will continue for six hours after the plowing first begins.

Some members of the Women's Association were present and were introduced. Mrs. John Brown acted as spokesman. After some discussion the directors decided that the plowmen will be given complimentary tickets and that officers and directors will be charged for meals. The ladies will be given a dollar a plate and tickets will be sold for this amount. Mrs. Munroe suggested that tea be provided for plowmen and helpers at 20 cents a plate and that hot dinner be served either at the church or near the field at 50 cents a plate.

The ladies of the W.A. then served refreshments and a pleasant half hour was spent. A vote of thanks to the ladies was moved by Mr. Alex McFayden and seconded by Warden S. Lovett.

Black Bear Shot At Burnt River

Collie Young Shot Big Fellow, Weighing 300 Pounds At Galway Corners

(Special)

Burnt River, Sept. 3—On Tuesday evening about dark Rollie Young, while passing the Galway Corners on the East Line, four miles from Burnt River, saw a bear, went home and got his gun and went back and shot the bruin. He is a big fellow weighing over three hundred pounds. It is thought Mr. Bruin was out in hunt for his supper.

On Tuesday, Oct. 1st, was the day of the Burnt River Branch of Womens Institute regular monthly meeting, it being held at the home of Mrs. I. Reids, with a very good attendance the meeting was carried on in usual form. Roll Call was responded to by singing, saying or paying. Some business was dealt with and an enjoyable programme was prepared. Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Reids and Mrs. Godwin.

Miss Margaret Lamb spent a couple of days in the village this week.

A moving picture show of Tom Mix and Charlie Chaplin was given in St. Lukes Parish Hall on Friday evening. The pictures were good and a large crowd turned out, some from Coboconk, Kinmount, as well as the villagers here.

Mrs. Jordon, of Toronto, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. Godwin.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dodd got a golden call away on Sunday night, owing to the death of one of Mr. Dodds relatives at Oakwood.

Quite a number from around this vicinity attended the Bobcaygeon Fair on Saturday last and report a good fair.

Mrs. R. Wright spent the week-end at Beaverton.

Mr. B. White of Lindsay was a business visitor in the village on Tuesday.

Mr. A. Ross of Lindsay was a business caller to the stores on Monday.

Since Premier Ferguson manipulated the repeal of Regulation 17, there have been no laws or regulations to limit, restrict or discourage the teaching of French. This was plainly stated last winter when Chief Inspector Greer testified at the Essex School case, when Mr. Coombs complained about the work in that school nearly all being carried on in French.

Months before Premier Ferguson announced his Friend Surrender, Mr. Patenaude, the big French Cross, was in Quebec was telling the French down there that Regulation 17 was soon to be discarded. Ontario Orangemen and the British thought Patenaude was talking nonsense. They little thought that Slippery Howard would promise Patenaude and the French agitators to repel Regulation 17 in return for French votes in Quebec for the Tory party. But Patenaude knew what he was talking about. He was in on the whole dirty swap. He knew what the bargain was long before Ferguson could tell Ontario. The French got their price and Ferguson may wait for his goods.

In 1923 the Orange Order spent over $17,000 to ensure the defeat of the Drury Government. Orangemen went to the polls and voted Drury out of power because they believed he was wavering on this very thing. The Mail and Empire denounced Bilingualism severely. Ferguson was supposed to be the man to trust because he declared most emphatically that English only should be the language in Ontario elementary schools. Orangemen and the English speaking people of Ontario believed him to be sincere and above board. Therefore they staked their faith in him and went out and crucified the Drury Government.

On July 3, 1923, the Orange Sentinel came out with large headlines "Regulation 17 will not be repealed" but by the best assurance the people of Ontario can have that Regulation 17 will not be repealed" —but—four years later, Sept. 21st, 1927, just three weeks before the big Dominion Conv. Convention in Winnipeg, this great Watch Dog and Protector of Regulation 17 comes forth to announce its end while every French paper and French leader in Canada gave him their plaudits.

But what about the Orangemen and British people who put this Watch Dog into power? Are they now to swallow this betrayal of trust? Are they going to crucify Drury for waverin and then shout Hallelujah when Ferguson does the real trick. Not much! Orangemen will be consistent on this thing and stand by their principles and convictions—not only Orangemen but all those red-blooded people who believe in an English-speaking Ontario. In face of the facts, any party that Orangemen who can sanction this surrender and sell out their rights and liberties, is not fit to be called Orangemen. Only members can buy at the clubhouse.

County Secy L.O.L.

LETTER BOX

The Editor, Dear Sir:

A few days ago I was asked how many Public and Separate Schools in Ontario are teaching French. The last figures I have are from the Bilingual Report which gives 50 schools with 984 classrooms and an enrolment of 30,688 pupils. The figures for the present are a good deal higher. That is the way bilingualism is getting the strangle hold on Ontario.

Do you know that Ontario is the only Province in Canada outside of Quebec where the French language is permitted in all grades in Public and Separate Schools? Ontario is the only Province outside of Quebec where the French have been granted all the school privileges they demanded. Ontario is the only Province in Canada in which German is taught in elementary schools. In other Provinces, such as Manitoba and B.C., where the percentage of English speaking people is much less than in Ontario English Only" is the language in the Elementary Schools. The Unionist British and Orange Province of Ontario the French agitators have got "special privileges" which other provinces in Canada, outside of Quebec, would allow to them.

There are only about 3 per cent. of the people of Ontario French and it is unreasonable that they should create the school laws of the Province.

Market Reports

Stock prices during the early trading on American and Canadian Exchanges again gave ground today, following heavy liquidation in the last hour on Wall Street yesterday, but towards noon traders became more confident and prices recovered somewhat. The first hour on Wall Street was marked by recessions of from one to 20 points from yesterday's final quotations, but prices pointed upward at noon. Trading was exceptionally heavy and last hour on the ticker was 45 minutes late.

Canadian Exchanges reflected the New York movement. Brazilian, International Nickel and Service Stations ran into liquidation, but Nickel and Brazilian snapped back to close steady at yesterday's closing price. Service Stations was weak throughout and at noon was off five points at 67¼.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Ont. Oct. 4.—Trading at the Union Stock Yards yesterday exceeded the usual week closing dullness, with few cattle offered and few bought. The total sales yesterday amounted to only a few loads of sows and canners and some fair to good quality feeding steers. The cow's and canners brought from $2.50 to $3.00 per cwt. and the steers from $6.75 to $7.75 per cwt. All the state cattle were of too poor a quality to attract buyers, and as a result, not there were none of the holdovers sold all throughout trading. A large holiday will be carried over the week-end. All the calves yesterday were off the road and brought steady prices for the best, from $12 per cwt. for the vealers and $6.50 per cwt. for the one bunch of grassers that was sold.

Lambs ruled the road throughs $11 per cwt. for ewes and wethers and at $8 per cwt. for bucks at the noon hour. Hogs were off 25c per cwt. that arrived from Montreal were not sold and will probably go for breeding purposes.

Hog trading was quiet yesterday with dirty packers bidding at $11.50 per cwt. from the country points and offered off car for bacon hogs.

THE SHINING TALENT

BY

Eleanor Early

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MOLLY BURNHAM, sob sister on a Boston paper, has been shot by a dope fiend, whose drug-crazed brain led him to believe he should kill her. Molly was reporting the trial of a gunman named Mandinello, and Dopey Dan took exception to her stories. His bullets failed, however, to wound her seriously. And now she is rapidly getting better.

JACK WELLS, her sweetheart, learns that Molly is collaborating with RED FLYNN, a police court reporter on a play; written from real life, and to be called "The Death of Delphine Dareux."

Because of the shooting, Molly has received widespread publicity. Red declares that it is worth a million dollars in advertising, and predicts a great success for their play. Then Jack conceives the notion that if Molly is going to have a career, she would be better off if their engagement were broken. He tries to tell her, but she promptly runs a temperature of 107 degrees and her nurse sends him away.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

The paper was sending Molly to Florida to recuperate. It was the talk before she was to leave, and Jack had come to say goodby.

She greeted him rapturously. "Oh, Jack, Rita's going to have a baby!"

"Zatso?"

"Is that so?" she cried. "Why, Jack Wells, I thought you'd be thrilled to death."

He grinned. "Lots of women have 'em."

"But Rita's different," she pointed out. "Theirs was a companionable marriage."

"Well, it all amounts to about the same thing, doesn't it? Now she's going to have a child, like her mother and her grandmother, and all the mothers since Eve. Nothing very revolutionary about that."

Molly's eyes grew wistful—"Just seeing her so glad made me think it must be wonderful to be married, and to be going to have a little baby."

"But as writers," taunted Jack, "must have our careers. You know, Molly, I haven't mentioned breaking our engagement since that day at the hospital when you ran a temperature on me. But I've thought of it plenty, and I haven't changed my mind any."

Molly had put her arms about his neck, when Jack did a most incredible thing. Unclasping her hands, he withdrew from her embrace.

"Molly, I can't be bamboozled when you do that! Can't you see that what I'm trying to do is for your own good? If I were to buck up your career, I'd feel like a rat. And after a while you'd hate me. On the other hand, if you go ahead, you're going to make a ton of money. Then where do I get off? Nowhere at all. You'd despise me if you had all the money, and I didn't have any."

"That's a dreadful way for you to talk, Jack. Besides, I may be an awful flop."

"Then I'll marry you," he promised.

"But that's not the half of it," she declared. "Suppose I do get somewhere—you're going to, too, honey."

"Where I am," he boasted. "Only I haven't made the grade yet. And I'm not going to be any hanger-on while you're going strong. If I'd made my little pile, it would be a different story. Don't you know I'm right, dear?"

"No. But I'll do what you say. I'll let our engagement be broken, if that's what you want. And, by and by, I can prove that I love you more than fame, or money, or anything."

* * *

Molly was struggling with the clasp on the pearl-studded fraternity pin Jack had given her.

"Here," she said, and sobbed.

"Oh, darling!" Jack kissed the tears in her eyes. "Won't you wear it, Molly? Somewhere where it won't show, if you'd rather. I'd like to know that it was close to you."

They clung to each other desperately. And Molly cried because the boy she loved was holding her in his arms. Kissing her tears away. Telling her that their futures lay far apart.

Molly wiped her eyes.

"I forgot to tell you," she said. "Red got himself transfered from police court to sports. He's written baseball before. Besides, he has a drag with the publisher. And he's got himself sent to St. Petersburg, to cover the Braves' training camp. You see he wanted to be around, dear, while I'm working on the play."

Jack lit a cigaret and said nothing.

"After all," she pointed out defensively, "it was his idea—the play, I mean. If it goes, it will be more to Red's credit than mine.

"You're not jealous of Red, honey?"

"Jealous?" he repeated. "Well, I reckon everyone in love is more or less jealous, honey."

"No, they're not," she affirmed. "Psycho-analysts say that jealousy is an indication of an inferiority complex."

"Yes—and how old are psycho-analysts?" he demanded. "They're ancient fossils who've forgotten all about being young and in love. Maybe they never were in love anyhow. What do they know about it? But I'm not cross, dear. And if I'm jealous, it's my own funeral. I hope you and Red hit the bull's eye. Honest I do."

* * *

A week later Molly and Red were hard at work. They had left the train at Jacksonville, where they hired a second-hand car, and motored on to St. Petersburg. The car was theirs for six weeks. They had loitered at St. Augustine, and they stopped in Daytona to see the famous beach, where a friend of Red's had been killed driving a racing car.

At St. Augustine, over the ancient walls of the oldest house in America, there grows a money vine, and the legend is that whoever carries a leaf of it will always have wealth. Molly had promised not to write Jack, unless a time should come when she needed his help. But now she put leaves from the celebrated money vine in an envelope, and sent them to Jack for a talisman.

"I'd lots rather," she told herself, "have Jack be somebody, than be somebody myself." And at the time she believed she meant it, for she was missing him cruelly. And Red was not always tactful.

"Any girl that can earn a good living is pretty darn lucky," observed Red one day.

They were at Don Ce-S-ar Beach, watching a group of young people who played at being acrobats. They were strong young things, with beautiful brown bodies, slim and straight and supple.

"Look at 'em," said Red. "The young out of the nest. Rich kids grading, that's what it is. Nice girls—and they're brought up to hunt a forager! Molly old dear, it's a lucky girl can earn her own living."

But Molly was growing tired of Red's quotations.

"Oh, I don't know," she protested. "I'm beginning to lean toward old-fashioned romance. A man who loves his wife wants to support her. It is a privilege, a pleasure, and a pride."

Red grinned. "Not only that," he amended impiously, "but 'Tis more blessed to give than to receive."

"It certainly is," agreed Molly. "The pleasure of giving is sweeter than that of receiving, and infinitely more beneficial. Take my father and mother. All their lives they've been sacrificing for each other, and they're the happiest people I know. Take Jack and me. He's generous and noble. And I'm so darn selfish and mercenary—"

* * *

The Peril was a tremendous woman in a yellow sun suit. She was dressed like the slim young things, in a suit without a back. And her flesh fell in great loose waves, that quivered like jelly.

"You ought to bring a jane like that into the play. Touch of comedy. Well, have to relieve the tragedy somehow. How'd it be to introduce a scene on Don Ce-Sar Beach?"

Molly watched the young people on the beach with marvelling interest. She had heard so much of the thing called Sex Consciousness. Where was it, this stalking, horrid Consciousness that had the adult world by its ears? Surely there was none of it among those beautiful, naked pagans. These glorious boys and girls who romped and swam and rode the waves like sun-tanned sprites.

"There's a new Youth," she told Red wisely, "and the oldsters don't know it. Look at that girl—the one in blue. There isn't enough material in the suit she's wearing to make a bandanna. Just the boy Bob, with her—the one in trunks, without a jersey—did you ever see a finer looking boy in your life?"

"They had been racing in the water—the girl in blue, and the boy in trunks—and now, breathless, they had thrown themselves on the beach.

"I wonder," mused Molly, "if there are middle-aged moralists anywhere with as little sex consciousness as those two. Wearing a lot of clothes and cultivating repressions doesn't do much for morality. I think boys and girls in sun suits are the sanest, healthiest, beautifulest things in the world."

"Now, Molly!" Red laughed at her earnestness. "Don't turn propagandist. You've all dolled up to forget this fine, clean youth you're hipped on. You gals bend your talents to a swell, dirty play. Lay off young virtue now, and get busy on middle-aged sin."

Her hotel was on the beach, and Molly's room faced the ocean. She found that she could have a swim, and still work six hours a day. Meeting Red for dinner, to go over with him the result of her labors.

The play was almost finished when Molly had a telegram from Bob. Rita's baby had come. A little girl. She weighed six pounds, and had long black hair. Rita was feeling fine.

Molly showed the wire to Red. "I think I'd like a baby myself," she sighed.

"Horsefeathers!" he retorted. "You can't have everything. Hadn't you rather have your name up in electric lights?"

They were leaving that week for New York, and Red had made an appointment for Molly to meet George Durbin, the great producer.

FORWARD PASS IN HOCKEY

With the National Hockey League adopting, discarding and revising rules, it might come to pass that within a few years Lindsay players will see O. H. A. teams playing hockey under a new set of rules. At a recent meeting the National Hockey League officials decided to adopt a rule permitting forward pass. This does not mean, however, that a player will be able to stand by the opposing goal and receive passes the full length of the rink. It means that the ice surface will be divided into three zones and that in any of these zones the forward pass can be used. A player on one zone cannot send a forward pass to a player in another zone, however, unless the player receiving the pass crosses into the new zone after the puck. This is not made so much to increase goal scoring as much as to open up the play, provide more action and eliminate some of the monotonous bell ringing.

"Not more than three players including the goalkeeper of the defending side may be in their defending zone when the puck is in any other zone. Should a team violate this rule it shall incur a minor penalty for each offence, the penalty to be awarded to the fourth player entering the zone. If more than one player offends at the same time the offending player nearest the play shall get the penalty."

The goalkeeper is not permitted to hold the puck. He should a face-off between two players of opposing teams shall take place ten feet out from the goal with no one between the face-off and the goal but the goal-keeper."

LARGER HOLE IN GOLF

Simultaneously with the release of a news story from New York announcing seven holes in one near that city in one week-end, comes a story from England concerning increasing the size of the hole. While there are people who would give their hearty support to having a hole as large as a soup plate, the experts say that it is big enough now and, in fact, some think that it should be made smaller so that fewer long putts could be holed. At present the hole is 4½ inches in diameter and some members of St. Andrew's increasing it to six inches than of standardizing the floating ball. St. Andrew's made the 4½ inch hole law thirty-eight years ago.

WITH THE GIANTS IN MEXICO

The Giants graced Mexico in their training trip last spring, but next March they expect to put on a real invasion of the land of frijoles and tortillas and play an exhibition in Mexico City with the White Sox as the opposition. John McGraw and the "Old Roman," Charley Comiskey, delight in combining baseball with touring. No country is too far or too lazy to stage a game. They picked up Havana and went touring Europe a few years ago. Once they went all the way around the world. Mention of Mexico recalls the last time the Athletics toured the border. A certain player was dissatisfied with his lot and wanted to be traded but Connie Mack couldn't see it that way. So the ball players too steps. They were all quartered in a roadhouse and officials had to run from place to place to round them up. The outfielder went over the border in the evening and filled up on tequila, a liquor of which an expert said: "One drink staggers you twice, half and a second gives you all the lights in the country." The outfielder came back long after midnight and made the trip up the front steps of the hotel and down the corridor to his room on his hands and knees. He was in the doghouse. He had a terrible headache the next day, and a firm conviction that Connie would get rid of him for his exploit. But Connie merely went to the manager of the hotel and said: "Put this fellow on the fourth floor in the far corner. If we can't stop him from drinking, we can at least make it tough for him to get to his room on his hands and knees."—New York Times.

Trophy in Memory of Royal Todd

Kingston, Oct. 4—In memory of the late Royal Todd, a member of the championship Queen's Intercollegiate junior football team of 1928, an annual trophy will be given for the member of the Intercollegiate junior team who is considered by his team-mates to be the most valuable player on the team. This trophy is being donated by the mother and sisters of the deceased player.

Royal Todd, was a popular and valuable member of the team last year and just as he was preparing to leave his home in Smithville for return to Queen's, where he was enrolled in "Meds '34," he was killed in a motor accident two weeks ago.

The Athletic Board of Control at Queen's at its meeting on Wednesday night, accepted the offer of Mrs. Todd, and expressed their sincere regret at the passing of the promising young athlete.

LIKE GOLDFISH

Paris, Oct. 3—To live in a glass house, a real crystal palace with magnificent pillars of purple crystal and balconies of transparent glass sparkling like diamonds as they reflect the rays of the sun, and moon, to sleep in a crystal bed, which is to become his coffin after his death, is the dream which a Paris hairdresser, Lucien Lelong, of society women of New York, London, Vienna Berlin and Warsaw, is now realizing.

Substitute Too Good for Maloney in Toronto Bout

Toronto, Oct. 4—Dan Kraloff, the big St. Louis wrestler who replaced Stanislas Zbyszko in the main bout of last night's show at the Arena Gardens, proved to be a very capable substitute—good enough to through Jim Maloney, the Boston Irishman, two in three falls. About 4,000 people witnessed the excellent grappling.

It appeared at the start that Maloney would have a very easy time of it, for he tossed the big Russian for the first fall in three minutes with the first real hold that he tried, and, incidentally, his favorite, the full-Nelson. But that quick break put him the next fall in nearly as short a time, for the much tattooed Irishman had a case case of overconfidence. Kraloff surprised him by put two headlocks on him, but when he came in for the third he pivoted and tossed him over the ropes. Maloney was the most surprised man in the house and went immediately for the hold that he had been successful with four minutes previously, but Kraloff had a checkmate for him on
